March 2024

Investors in South Africa and abroad need no reminding that we are well into an election year because politicians we have not heard of for years are out and about everywhere and spewing more nonsense than any of us have heard for a very long time.

Fortunately our ever-alert Press is just as active, giving the lie to most of it and noting for a start that there is insufficient money anywhere for the more grandiose plans many are promising. Moreover, where the undelivered promises of many previous election campaigns are being trotted out once again, the Press is also there to remind us of that fact.

There are, however, facts that are real which will significantly affect our future well-being and, of these, the US core inflation rate is arguably the most important because its steady decline from a peak of 6.6 percent in September 2022 to the latest 3.9 percent offers us a reasonable guarantee that the global interest rate pattern will soon begin to replicate the graph on the right offering share markets a consequent boost:

Thus my next graph, covering the same 5-year period illustrates how US 30-year long bonds have responded, rising to a similar peak yield of 5.12 percent in late October 2023. We now know that market optimism exceeded the reality of the US Federal Reserve action plan and it fell sharply until the end of December when, noting Fed Chairman Jay Powell's "We are not yet done" comments, it rebounded upwards again until it reached a 4.49 percent interim peak in late February. Happily, however, it has since resumed its down-trend to touch 4.24 percent this week.

Of course, Wall Street shares usually rise in price as interest rates fall, but this time around, probably in anticipation of political stimulation in one of the strangest election years of modern history, they significantly jumped the gun with the most widely representative S&P500 Index moving into a bull phase from as early as October 2022 as my third graph illustrates.

Consequently, having moved so far ahead, ShareFinder's Al projection in red in my last graph on this page logically concludes that for the next 12 months the S&P500 is likely to trend rather more sedately from now on. Most of the developed world will likely follow the S&P500 trend as their own markets react to the same political stimuli.

The majority of Prospects readers are, however, most interested in the South African markets and so I have reproduced a larger AI projection of the JSE All Share Index. Here, note a FAR MORE positive outlook once the May 29 election is behind us. Though ShareFinder predicts a brief period of market indecision beginning a week ahead of the election and going into almost free-fall until June 10, a very strong recovery is anticipated thereafter and, although I have not shown it in my first graph because otherwise much detail would be lost, ShareFinder senses gains continuing for the next four years.

More important for followers of this column is the likely trend of quality JSE shares, the Blue Chips which by my definition have delivered at least ten years of rising dividends. As you can see, ShareFinder predicts this category of shares will continue gaining value until April 2027. Moreover, the green trend line suggests that the compound annual average trend of this category of shares will be compound 12 percent plus an average dividend yield of greater than two percent:

The SA Prospects Portfolio:

Since we inaugurated this pioneering portfolio in January 2011, just over 13 years ago, we have successfully increased our original R1-million investment to a current R5.626-million which, if you care to calculate it represents a compound annual average growth rate of 14.22 percent since inception. Adding an average dividend yield of 4.4 percent means that it continues to deliver record returns at a Total Return number of 18.62 percent. Hopefully it has enriched all readers of this column in likewise fashion over the past few years:

Regarding future strategy, until more dividend income accumulates we have nothing more to invest but I continue to eye Anglo American Plc which I expect to bottom at R380 in mid-April. Meanwhile the Prospects SA Portfolio now looks like this:

London Blue Chip Portfolio

Our London portfolio continues to steam ahead at a compound annual average rate of 24.97 percent which, together with a dividend yield of 3.2 percent, takes this portfolio to a compound annual average Total Return of 28.17 percent:

Here, as elsewhere, I am continuing to use dividend income to pick up good quality shares at their current lows. Presently I have my eye on Smart Metering systems if they fall as projected, below £8.75. Meanwhile, the London portfolio thus continues to look like this:

NYSE Prospects Portfolio

Our New York portfolio continues its remarkable 28.36 percent compound average growth rate as we head to the five year mark at the end of this year. Adding in an average dividend yield of 1.47 percent takes us to a current Total Return average of 29.83 percent.

Looking ahead as I noted last month, this portfolio appears to be nearing the end of its current record-breaking run with ShareFinder's short-term projection sensing at best only modest gains until the end of July followed by weakness to the end of the year. Accordingly I continue to adopt a wait and see approach while continuing to accumulate dividend income. I still have my eye on Frontline Ltd @ $23 which has delivered exceptional price and dividend growth in recent years.

The portfolio currently thus looks like this:

Australian Blue Chip Portfolio

Our Australian portfolio continues to enjoy strong growth with the trend line in the graph having accelerated to compound 28.41 percent annually which, together with an average dividend yield of 3 percent makes for a Total Return of 31.41 percent. Furthermore ShareFinder continues to anticipate further growth to a peak in late June followed by a slow decline well into New Year.

Of the companies I have been eyeing, Energy One fell to $3.82 on February 27 and although I had only a small amount of accumulated dividend, I bought to the limit and so this is how the current portfolio is structured:

On the following pages we publish lists of the world's top-performing shares which, we submit, should form the bulk of your investment portfolios in their respective countries or as suggested replacements for any in your portfolios that are achieving lesser growth rates than the ShareFinder Blue Chip average growth rates which head the lists. The shares listed in the first block of each list have been selected because of their investment grade quality, their very high dividend growth rates and superior investment safety.

The second block of ten offers significantly higher dividend growth rates but at the price of a greater degree of investment risk. The shares listed in the third block have been selected because of their investment grade quality and their very high price growth rates. These offer superior investment safety. Finally, shares in the fourth block have been selected because they generally offer significantly higher price growth rates but at the price of a greater degree of investment risk:
